

ED.M. IN SOCIAL STUDIES EDUCATION WITH INITIAL CERTIFICATION: SOCIAL STUDIES K-12 TEACHING (4+1)

Revised Summer, 2024 -- For students earning a bachelor's degree in May, 2026 or later

*Students who complete this program successfully will receive an Ed.M. in Social Studies Education from the GSE as well as a nomination to the New Jersey Department of Education for a Certificate of Eligibility with Advanced Standing (CEAS) in Social Studies (K-12)

I. PROGRAM DESCRIPTION: The Ed.M. in Social Studies education with initial certification is designed for Rutgers undergraduate students who wish to teach social studies in grades K-12. This program provides undergraduates with an opportunity to earn their bachelor's degree, a master's degree, and an initial teacher certification with just one additional year of study. Rutgers undergraduates do preliminary coursework as advised during the first three undergraduate years, including undergraduate coursework in social sciences or a closely related field. They are admitted to the program during the spring semester of junior year and enter the professional education sequence during senior year. After students are awarded a bachelor's degree by the undergraduate college, they continue with the professional sequence for a fifth year of full-time graduate study at the GSE.

Upon completion of all program requirements, students earn an Ed.M. in Social Studies Education and the GSE will make a nomination to the New Jersey Department of Education on behalf of the student to receive a Certificate of Eligibility with Advanced Standing (CEAS) in Teacher of Social Studies (K-12).

The Ed.M. in Social Studies Education with Initial Certification in Social Studies K-12 Teaching (4+1) program offers a range of foundational and specialized topics in social studies education using a cohort model. Students develop a comprehensive, empirically motivated understanding of social studies education through coursework and curriculum analysis that challenge them to think critically about individual student experiences and identities, and their effect on classroom learning and student development. Students explore topics including the anthropology of education, gender and education, civic learning, the history and philosophy of education, and race, ethnicity, and equity in education, among others. This program is well suited to students with career interests in teaching, curriculum, and educational research at the elementary, secondary, and college levels.

In alignment with the GSE's mission, all teacher preparation programs and courses are designed to prepare teacher candidates to be culturally responsive practitioners and effectively teach diverse learners by fostering a deep understanding of students from historically underserved linguistic, economic, and cultural backgrounds and communities. Pedagogy courses aimed at meeting the specific learning needs of middle and high school students, along with carefully crafted internships under the guidance of experienced teachers and expert faculty providing feedback, ensure that candidates are well-prepared as teachers to advance equity and excellence in their content area.

II. MAJOR: Students must complete a full major in one of the social studies' subject areas: history (including one course in world history and one in US history), civics/political science, sociology, geography, anthropology, economics.

Students who major in civics/political science, sociology, geography, anthropology, economics, must complete an additional 15 credits in history including one course in world history and one in US history.

Students whose major is outside the social studies' subject areas, must complete an additional 30 credits in history with 12 at the 300 level or above, including one course in world history and one in US history.

III. APPLICATION REQUIREMENTS: To be considered for admission to the program, applicants must provide the following before the application deadline:

1. Personal statement
2. One letter of recommendation
3. Official undergraduate transcripts - the New Jersey Department of Education requires a minimum GPA of 2.75 to be admitted to a teacher education program.

(NOTE: Praxis Core, SAT, GRE, ACT or other basic skills exams are no longer required as of January 1, 2025. Admission to the GSE Teacher Education Programs is competitive. Meeting the minimum requirements above does not guarantee admission.)
