

School Counseling Program – Student Outcomes:
Academic Year 2024-2025

The School Counseling program had 14 graduates in the 2024-2025 academic year (January, May, and August 2025), which included 12 students who began in fall 2023 and two students who began in fall 2022 (one of whom began part-time).

Of the 18 students who began in fall 2023, 12 graduated in May or August 2025. Three students remain enrolled as of fall 2025, one of whom began part-time. Thus, the two-year graduation rate of full-time students is 71% (12/17 students), while 83% of all who began in fall 2023 (15/18 students) graduated or are still enrolled in the program as of fall 2025. The fall 2023 entering cohort was the first group to enroll after the program switched from 48 to 60 credits, and the program now expects students to graduate in three years rather than two.

The state of New Jersey does not require a licensure or certification examination.

Ten graduates secured employment as school counselors following completion of the program. One enrolled in an EdD program at Rutgers, another is working in a counseling-related position in a school, and one chose to remain a teacher after completing the program with the expectation that a school counseling position may become available in her district soon. Employment is unknown for one graduate. Thus, 100% (12/12) of graduates seeking employment as school counselors or in counseling-related positions (e.g. at a counseling center, as a student assistance specialist in a school district) have secured such employment or are enrolled in a doctoral program.
